East Room Used for the First Timetion-Personal Notes.

DINNER FOR THE DIPLOMATS.

tained last night at the annual state dinner for the diplomatic corps. This ceremonious banquet was spread for the first time in White House history in the east room, the spaciousness and stateliness of which were most appropriate and the sight of which inspired the hope that some time in the near future the home of the President, or the building assigned for his hospitalities, would boast not only one, but several apartments of as imposing dimenwall space as to make every part of the room unusually attractive was not wasted on the artists of the propagating gardens whose particular province lies in the east room on the great occasions each winter. The ceiling lights shone through a tracery of smilax, and miles of this waxy-leaved vine encircled the pillars, hung in scalloped draperies in front of mirrors and over doorways and from the crystal chan-deliers. The east mantels were banked in fragrant red and white carnations, and in the center of each mirror a plaque of the same blossoms was suspended. Clear around the room amid the vines that sprayed over the curtains, the tops of the mirrors and the intervening spaces glowed tiny electric lights under red, white and blue globes, the current being turned off now and then to add a little element of surprise over each appearance and disappearance.

The table was in shape a rather elongated capital I, and the floral decoration breaking the sixty-eight-foot expanse of linen was in pink and white. Oblong and circular plaques of pink wax blossoms, bordered with maidenhalr fern, formed the flat places, and alternating with these were flat pleces, and alternating with these were tall and slender glass vases filled with white roses, the blossoms nodding a foot higher than the heads about the board. There were white roses also for corsage bouquets and boutonnieres, and the can-delabra had pink shades.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt received in the blue room, where the assistant secretary of state made the presentations of the foreigners and Commander Cowles and Maj. McCawley were also in attendance for the same formal duty for the other guests. When dinner was announced the President led the way through the green room to the state dining room, escorting Lady Pauncefote, the long procession of guests terminating with the mistress of the mansion and Lord Pauncefote. At the table the President and his wife sat opposite each other, having central places. The President sat between the British and Mexican amhassadresses. Mrs. Rocewell bed the ambassadresses. Mrs. Roosevelt had the British ambassador at her right and the German ambassador at her left hand. Mrs. Takahira, the wife of the Japanese minister, was a few seats from the President, and the Countess Cassini two places below her. Mrs. von Hengelmuller, wife of the Austrian-Hungarian minister, had a place about corresponding to that of the youthful Russian countess, but on the opposite side of the table, and Mrs. Wu, wife of the Chinese minister, was but a little way from Mrs. Roosevelt's right. There were thirteen places across the extreme ends of the table and two at each short corner, the space reaching out being unoccupied, and thus allowing all the guests to face the center of interest, where the President and his wife were seated.

The list of guests included the British ambassador and Lady Pauncefote, the ambassador of Germany, the ambassador of France, the ambassador of Russia and Countess Marguerite Cassini, the ambassador of Mexico and Mrs. de Azpiroz, the ambassador of Italy, the minister of Guatebassador of Italy, the minister of Guate-mala (on special mission), the minister of and Mrs. Wu, the minister of Nicaragua, the Netherlands minister, the minister of Slam, the minister of Japan and Mrs. Takahira, the minister of Persia, the minister of Colombia, the minister of Corea, the Argentine minister and Mrs. de Garcia Merou, gentine minister and Mrs. de Garcia Merou, mead, Mrs. John Volney Barross, Mrs. Holmed's mother, and Mrs. Charles H. gentine minister and Mrs. de Garc'a Merou, the minister of Turkey, the charge d'af-faires of Portugal, the charge d'affaires of Brazil, the charge d'affaires of Spain, the charge d'affaires of Peru and Mrs. de Pezet, the charge d'affaires of Bolivia and Mrs. de Gutierrez, the charge d'affaires of Belgium, pink silk, with quantities of lace, diamond ornaments and a pink aigrette in her air. Lady Pauncefote wore black satin, a dia-mond tiara and numerous other jewels. Mrs. Azpiroz wore mauve satin and Chantilly lace. Countess Cassini was in white; Mrs. Takahira, in pale yellow; Mrs. Hill, black and white brocade; Mrs. Miles, light blue; Mrs. Cullom, white satin; Mrs. C. D. Clark, pale pink silk; Mrs. Foraker, white satin with insertions of black lace; Miss Morgan, white lace; Mrs. Fairbanks, black and white striped silk; Mrs. Cowles, white lace over white and black velvet ribbon trimmings; Mrs. Walsh, white lace and jet; Miss Root, pale blue, and Miss Roosevelt, white silk and rosebuds.

Mrs. Roosevelt was beautifully gowned in high cilk, with quantities of less diamend.

The Marine Band played in the corridor near the east room door.

The willingness of the average small boy to share his pleasures was manifest in the pehavior of two youngsters who joined the sightseers in the east room an hour before the dinner was served. One was a head shorter than the other, and the tallest, who was stronger and sturdier, lifted the small chap to the level of the cloth that sman chap to the level of the cloth that he might see what was on it. The smallest was the baby boy of the colored butler of the White House and the other was the President's son Archibald.

SALE OF DRUGS AND POISONS. Dr. Woodward Suggests Additions

Sections to Proposed Law. Dr. Woodward, the health officer, has recommended to the District Commissioners several additional sections to the proposed law regulating the sale of drugs and poisons in the District of Columbia. Among the sections are the following:

That no person shall, in the District of Columbia, retail, compound, dispense, barter, or sell to any other person any drug or medicine intended for internal or for external use, or any antiseptic or disinfectant other than that applied for and designated by such other person, without making fully known to such other person the difference or differences between the article applied delivered by the seller.

That no person applying for any poison in the District of Columbia shall make any false statement to the person from whom such poison is sought as to the name, address, or age of such applicant; as to the use for which such poison is to be empioyed, or as to the name or address of the person for whom such poison is intended. That any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding $100, or imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. Prosecutions under this act shall be in the Police Court of said District on information in the name of the District of Columbia, by its city solicitor or one of his

FAVOR THE PENDING BILL

TEMPERANCE ADVOCATES AUDIENCE WITH COMMISSIONERS

Adoption Urged of Liquor License Law Which Provides for Closer Serutiny of Business The District Commissioners today granted hearing to representatives of the Anti-

Saloon League, the Women's Christian

Temperance Union, the Christian Endeavor and Epworth League societies, and ministers of several denominations, on the subject of the liquor license bill which was reported to Congress at the last session. The representatives of the several organizations at the hearing today urged the Commissioners to renew their efforts for the introduction and passage of the bill during the present Congress, and also suggested several amendments that might be made to it with advantage. The new law proposes no radical changes in the excise law as it exists at present, but provides for a closer scrutiny and a closer compliance with the intent of the existing statute. Mr. A. E. Shoemaker, attorney for the Anti-Saloon League, made the opening address. He called attention to the fact that under a decision of the Court of Appeals some years ago the clause in the present liquor law prohibiting the sale of whisky to minors became a practical dead letter, and asserted there had been no prosecutions under it since the decision was handed down. Mr. Shoemaker said that an amendment to the draft of the new law should be made so as to more specifically prohibit the sale of liquor to young men under twenty-one years of age. Mr. Shoemaker called attention to the recommenda-tion of Major Richard Sylvester, the superintendent of police, that saloons be confined to the business sections and business streets. He said a number of applications were now pending for saloons in the residence sections, and asked the Commiss since 1893, when the present liquor law went into effect, there had been 229 prosecutions in the Police Court and only fifty-two convictions. He said cases were often postponed until witnesses could not be secured. He said further that in one-half of the fifty-two convictions the minimum penalty of $50 was imposed. In fifteen cases personal bonds were taken, and several others dismissed. He said that eightyeight out of the 229 cases, or more than 20 per cent, were nol. prossed. He ventured the assertion that in no other class of cases could such a large percentage of nol. prossed causes be found. Mr. Shoemaker quoted from a recent report of Police Lieut. Amiss on an application for a renewal of dissection of a renewal of license, in which the officer said that unless something was done to expedite the trial of liquor cases in the Police Court the law would become a farce. Mr. Shoemaker said the Anti-Saloon League would not attempt to fix the responsibility. He recommended that the Commissioners design. mended that the Commissioners draft an amendment to the District code making the jury term in the Police Court thirty days, instead of three months, as it now stands. He believed that would help matters to some extent. Among others who spoke along these these were Mr. James L. Ewin, president of the Anti-Saloon League; Rev. F. D. Power, Rev. J. F. Heisse, Rev. J. G. Butler, Mrs. M. F. Berry, Mr. J. M. Pickens, Mr. O. P. Kellar, Mr. E. S. LaFetra and Mr. S. W. Pussell

January 10, 1900.

A home has been stricken with sorrow,

A loved one is taken away;

And grief throws its gloom over the me

And darkens the face of its day.

She was thoughtful, loving, tender With each and every one. Here she suffered, but is now rejoicing In heaven, awaiting her loved ones to come.
